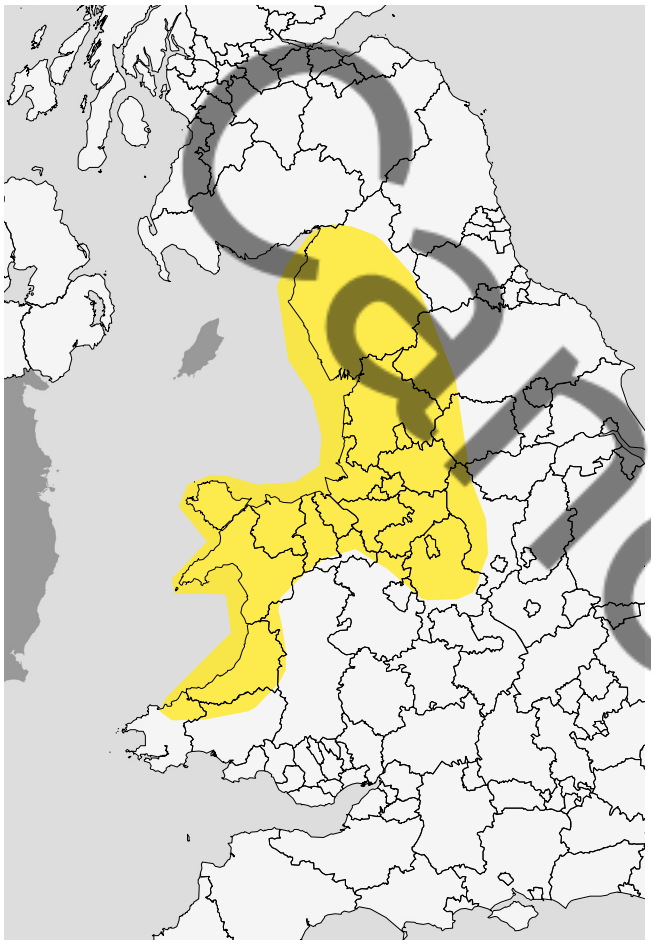
Yellow warning
Snow & Ice

Between
00:00 Thu 18 Jan 2024 and
23:59 Thu 18 Jan 2024



Snow showers across parts of west Wales initially, will increasingly affect northwest England later. Some travel disruption is likely.

What to expect

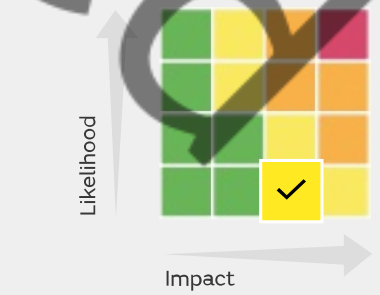
- There is a small chance of travel delays on roads with some stranded vehicles and passengers, along with delayed or cancelled rail and air travel
- A small chance of injuries from slips and falls on icy surfaces
- A small chance that untreated pavements and cycle paths become impassable

Cancelled

Further details

A band of snow showers will start the day running across parts of west Wales, however as the wind changes to a more northwesterly direction these will increasingly affect parts of, north Wales, northwest England, and perhaps reaching parts of the northwest Midlands later in the day.

Generally many places in this area will only see 1-2 cm or so of snow, with any quickly melting on the immediate coastlines. However, where showers align, some narrow corridors could see 5-10 cm of snowfall. This most likely in parts of northwest England.



Very low likelihood of medium impacts

In addition, ice will likely be a significant hazard across much of the region.

What should I do?

Snowy, wintry weather can cause delays and make driving conditions dangerous, so to keep yourself and others safe; Plan your route, checking for delays and road closures, amending your travel plans if necessary: If driving, leave more time to prepare and check your car before setting off; Make sure you have essentials packed in your car in the event of any delays (e.g., warm clothing, food, water, a blanket, a torch, ice scraper/de icer, a warning triangle, high visibility vest and an in-car phone charger).

Be prepared for weather warnings to change quickly: when a weather warning is issued, the Met Office recommends staying up to date with the weather forecast in your area..

Reason for cancellation

Impactful snow and ice are not now expected across northwest England and southwest Scotland. A separate warning for snow and ice covers parts of Wales and southwest England.
